AUTHOR RIGHTS AND OPEN ACCESS POLICY

As an author, you are granted rights for a large number of author uses, including use by your employer (institution or company). These rights are granted and permitted without the need to obtain specific permission from the Advances in Electrical and Computer Engineering Editor, provided a full credit line is prominently placed (the citation information for your paper and copyright holder). These author rights are granted and apply only to articles for which you are named as the author or co-author.

The author rights INCLUDE:

- The right to make printed copies of the article for own personal use, including for own classroom teaching use;
- The right to make printed copies and distribute copies of the article to research colleagues, for the personal use by such colleagues (but not commercially or systematically, e.g., via an e-mail list or listserv);
- The right to present the article at a meeting or conference and to distribute printed copies of such paper or article to the delegates attending the meeting;
- Patent and trademark rights and rights to any process or procedure described in the article;
- The right to include the article in full or in part in a thesis or dissertation (provided that this is not to be published commercially);
- The right to use the article or any part thereof in a printed compilation of works of the author, such as collected writings or lecture notes (subsequent to publication of the article in AECE);
- The right to prepare other derivative works, to extend the article into book-length form, or to otherwise reuse portions or excerpts in other works, with full acknowledgment of its original publication in AECE;
- The right to self-archive the work by posting the work as the final peer-reviewed author's manuscript (but not the published layout) on their own website and their institution's website (website only, NOT repository) no earlier than 6 months after print publication in AECE;
- Prior versions of the article published on non-commercial pre-print servers like arXiv.org can remain on these servers and/or can be updated with the author's accepted version. The final published version (in pdf or any other format) cannot be used for this purpose. Acknowledgement needs to be given to the final publication and a link should be inserted to the published article on AECE's website, accompanied by the text "The final publication is available at www.aece.ro".

What you are expressly NOT ALLOWED to do:

- Do not post the full article PDF file downloaded from the AECE web-site to any other web-site(s). Instead, you may use a link to the article page using the permanent link by using the Digital Object Identifier (doi:) link <http://dx.doi.org/AECE-paper-doi> (every article has a DOI number assigned - see the one assigned to your paper);
- Do not publish the same paper, or papers including significant portions of it, in any other journal (see the first page of this form).
